Goering Gives Up Command Of Luftwaffe

HAMBURG radio last night announced that Herr Hitler had acceded to a request from Reich Marshal Goering to be relieved of his post because of heart trouble.

"Reich Marshal Hermann Goering is suffering from a heart disease, which has now entered an acute stage," said the radio. "He has, therefore, asked to be relieved of the command of the Luftwaffe and all duties connected therewith, because at this moment the full harnessing of all strength is needed.

"The Führer has granted this request.

"The Führer has appointed Colonel-General Ritter von Greim to be the new C.-in-C. of the Lufawaffe, promoting him at the same time to the rank of Field-Marshal."—(Reuter.)

Marshal Goering has been closely associated with the Luftwaffe since the Great War.

When the famous German "ace," Richthofen, was killed, Goering assumed command of the Richthofen Squadron.

After the war Goering turned his attention to civil aviation, giving exhibition flights, and for a time organised an air line. Herr Hitler gave him the task of reforming the Luftwaffe, and in three years he built it up to a most powerful force, so far as peace-time activities were concerned.

He has been an ardent supporter of Hitler from the beginning, and at one time there were suggestions that he would become Deputy Führer.

He has been twice married. His first wife, Carin von Fock, was the daughter of an Irish woman named Beamish. Their marriage was dissolved two years later. His present wife is Emmy Sonnemann, the actress.

Goering is 52 years old.—(Reuter.)

Verona Captured in Allied Drive

The capture of Verona, southern terminal of the Brenner railway line, was announced last night at Allied Italian H.Q.

Reuter's special correspondent cables that the final phase of the battle for North Italy has started.

Verona is on the Adige, main German defence line, covering Venice and North-Eastern Italy. Other units have crossed the Adige, and 8th Army troops were reported last night to be lining the river.

The Fifth Army has crossed the Po in strength, and only small isolated groups of Germans remain on the southern bank. The Germans have carried out extensive demolitions north of the river. Fifth Army troops have captured Reggio and Parma and are 54 miles north-west of Bologna and only 74 from Milan. Aulia, 11 miles inland from Spezia, has fallen.

R.A.F. heavy bombers are still concentrating on communications. The marshalling yards at Freilassing, five miles north-west of Salzburg, were raided during Wednesday night, and nearly 500 trucks and other rolling-stock were destroyed or damaged.

Twelfth Air Force Mitchells and Desert fighter bombers destroyed or damaged 1,000 vehicles when the 8th Army took over the Polesella area. The Mediterranean Air Force has destroyed over 6,000 vehicles since the Allies started their push on April 19th.

Yesterday's German communiqué said:—"The Anglo-Americans have brought up strong forces to the Po north-west of Ferrara and have succeeded in crossing the river at several places, supported by strong artillery and bomber formations."

BILL TO LEGALISE LAW TERMS IN IRISH

ON the second stage of the Irish Legal Terms Bill, 1945, in the Senate yesterday, Mr. G. BOLAND, Minister for Justice, said that the bill was intended to provide Irish translations for legal terms in English, and to guarantee that such translations would have the same meaning as the corresponding English terms.

Mr. M. HAYES said that it was humbug to talk about the Irish version of the Constitution having precedent to the English version. The Constitution was drafted in English and then translated into Irish, not by the people who were most competent to do it, but by a group which produced a very unsatisfactory translation of the English version.

Mr. M. J. RYAN said that he thought that the bill was the first really serious effort that had been made to put Irish on a secure foundation where the Courts were concerned, but he complained that under the bill the Government could appoint to the Committee a person who had no knowledge of law. He suggested that the Minister should have regard to the existing forms and precedents in the English language, so that there would be no disparity between the two versions.

Notwithstanding all the talk about Irish in the Courts, there was not a single legal text book in the Irish language at the present time.

Mr. L. O'DEA said that in areas in Co. Galway, Irish was in use in the Courts and in the issue of summonses.

The Report stage of the Racing Board and Racecourses Bill was passed and the Bill returned to the Dail.

The Committée stage of the Mental Treatment Bill, 1944, was passed, and the Report stage was fixed for the next sitting of the Senate, May 9th.

Better Gas For Dublin

According to an announcement made by the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company, the calorific value of the gas which they intend to supply will be increased from 360 British thermal units gross per cubic foot to 380 from May 2nd, 1945.

RUSSIANS IN CHARLOTTENBURG

Allies Capture Bremen and Stettin

[Reuter and A.P. Reports.]

AS THE RED ARMY TIGHTENED ITS TANK RING ROUND BERLIN YESTERDAY AND FOUGHT INTO THE WESTERN SUBURBS OF CHARLOTTENBURG AND GRUNEWALD, FURTHER BIG SUCCESSES WERE ACHIEVED BY THE ALLIES ON THE NORTHERN AND SOUTHERN FRONTS.

With Germany, according to Reuter, being cut into "pockets,"

BREMEN, the great inland port on the Weser, was occupied by the British 2nd Army. Mopping-up is going on in the bomb-wrecked city;

STETTIN, Germany's main Baltic outlet, and the third largest port in the Reich, was captured by Marshal Rokossovsky's forces;

BRNO, 30 miles inside Czechoslovakia from the Austrian border, was taken by Malinovsky's troops. It is the "home" of the Bren gun;

GENERAL PATTON'S 3rd U.S. Army is eight miles from the Austrian border, and American forces now stand along 180 miles of the Danube.

In Berlin itself, both sides were reported last night to have thrown in more troops as the battle increased in violence.

Inside the Russian "ring," the Berlin police are taking part in the fighting, and German planes yesterday dive-bombed Red Army positions in the capital. Tramcars were overturned and used as street barricades. Stiff battles went on in the underground railways.

Panic-stricken throngs of men, women, and children fled west towards the Elbe river as the Russians pressed on.

Berlin

German reports last night stated that Red Army forces had reached Jannowitz Bridge Station, only a few hundred yards from the Imperial Palace, at the eastern end of the Unter den Linden. In many sectors the battle is a series of individual sieges of big offices, blocks of apartment houses and railway stations.

As the Russians pressed from the south-west, Wannsee, five miles below Charlottenburg, was captured by tank forces, which pushed on into Charlottenburg and the Tiergarten.

The Spandau suburb was entered by the troops which advanced through Grünewald.

Fighting raged on the southern side of the Templehof Aerodrome. The main thrusts into the capital are repored to be coming from north-west and south-west.

The Soviet ring around the city yesterday was roughly 15 miles from east to west, and eight miles from north to south.

Three million civilians are said to be hiding in Berlin's cellars and houses. Russian squads moved into the city yesterday to widen the German rail gauge for Russian trains.

The Soviet communiqué at midnight announced the capture of Siemenstadt, Berlin's largest industrial district, and the districts of Gartenstadt, Finow, Finowfurt, Marienwerder (in the north-east), and Dahlem (south-west). Goerlitz rail terminus was also taken. Siemenstadt is in western Berlin, five miles from the centre of the capital. Königswusterhausen, home of the Deutschlandsender radio station, was captured.

Bremen

Shattered by bombs, the great city of Bremen fell to General Dempsey's British 2nd Army yesterday. • By mid-afternoon the entire city had been cleared, except the dock area.

After several hours of artillery preparation, the British troops went over to the attack on Bremen on a wide front, and, according to the German communiqué, forced their way into the suburbs and south-eastern part of the city, where fierce fighting developed.

Mopping-up is in progress. Isolated Germans, rushed to protect the city, are still fighting savagely, despite its capture.

Upwards of 5,000 prisoners were taken by the British in Bremen. To the north Allied forces reached the sea near the Dutch-German frontier.

Stettin

Marshal Rokossovsky's White Russian troops forced the eastern and western areas of the River Oder south of Stettin, and advanced 18 miles.

In the course of this drive they occupied Stettin, capital of Pomerania, as well as the towns of Gartz, Penkum, Schwedt and Kasekow.

Stettin is one of the most bombed cities of the Reich, having been attacked repeatedly by the R.A.F., the U.S.A.A.F., and the Red Air Force. The raids were designed to put the port out of action as the main sea supply base for the German armies invading Russia.

Before the war Stettin had a population of 270,000.

Gartz is 18 miles south of Stettin, and Schwedt seven miles further upstream. Kasekow is 15 miles west of Stettin.

Criticisms of Land Policy Challenged by Minister

THE vote for the Department of Lands was passed by the Dail yesterday after Mr. S. MOYLAN, the Minister, replied to the criticisms of his Department and the Land Commission during the debate on the estimate.

In spite of all the criticisms, he said, the Land Commission was doing its job as well as any human organisation could do it in very adverse circumstances.

Regarding allegations that he had refused to receive a deputation at the request of some deputies, he recalled that he had met Deputy O'Higgins at Leinster House and the deputy told him he had certain criticisms to make about Land Commission activities. He informed Deputy O'Higgins that he would meet him at any time and that arrangement still stood. In regard to another request for the reception of a deputation made by Deputy Flanagan he had pointed out to the deputy that there was nothing that he could do in the matter.

Proceeding, the Minister said that when a deputy wilfully misrepresented him definitely he would refuse to meet him in a deputation. It had always been the rule of the Land Commission that there should not be political interference with the work of the Commission. Deputy O'Higgins referred to statements he made at a Fianna Fail Convention some years ago. What he (speaker) had said then—and it represented his view-point—was that the business of the Land Commission was to create farms and put farmers in possession of them, and he guaranteed that when attacks were made on inspectors and they were accused of political bias, that the political affiliations of any suitable applicant would not debar him from consideration by the Land Commission.

Deputy Flanagan had stated that when he was secretary of a Fianna Fail Cumann a Land Commission inspector had told him that he had been instructed to call on him. If he (the Minister) knew of any of his inspectors who called on Deputy Flanagan for advice on any matter he would dismiss him on the spot. It was untrue that after declining to meet the Laoighis-Offaly Deputies on the question of the division of a Laoighis estate, he had met a Fianna Fail Co. Councillor in relation to the same matter.

Referring to criticism, that the Land Commission had destroyed the fertility of the land by producing corn crops year after year from the same fields, Mr. Moylan said that the Land Commission, like every other landowner, had done its best to preserve fertility, and, like other landowners, it had not always been successful. Now and again they gave lands to people who proved failures. "I am in favour of getting rid of these failures ruthlessly," he said.

"Men who get land and houses, and refuse to live in their houses, letting the lands to former owners, and regarding as windfalls the money they can get out of the land by selling it, or letting the houses, are a menace. I think we should have no pity, and we hope to bring a short bill before the Dail which will give us powers to deal with these people—with no ill-will or malice, but in the national interest."

Mr. Moylan said that despite much never again expect a wholesale acquisition or distribution of land.

The House agreed to the estimate.

Introducing the Forestry Estimate, Mr. Moylan said there was very little definite hope of increased planting activities during the coming season. The planting figure had been maintained at 4,000 acres in the face of many difficulties during the past and three preceding seasons.

The estimate for the current year showed an increase of £93,061, due mainly to greater provision for the acquisition of land and the maintenance and development of areas already acquired.

Mr. Moylan indicated that the provision for the acquisition of land grant-in-aid had been increased from £10,000 to £25,000. The forestry division was at present committed to the purchase of 11,270 acres at a cost of £27,042 from private landowners and of 3,127 acres at a cost of £12,279 from the Land Commission. In addition, negotiations had reached an advanced stage for the acquisition of 3,550 acres from private owners at a cost of £13,281.

The Estimate was passed.

GAELTACHT SERVICES

Introducing the Gaeltacht Services Estimates, Mr. MOYLAN said that the estimate was £1,829 lower than was asked last year. Total expenditure was less by £45,946, and receipts by £44,117. There was a decrease of £27,275 on provisions for rural industries, of £14,079 for homespun, and £5,316 for sea industries. An increase of £1,916 was being provided for the headquarters.

The estimate was passed.

EDUCATION COUNCIL

Speaking on the resumed debate on the motion in the names of Deputies Mulcahy and McGilligan, calling for the setting up of a Select Committee of the House to formulate proposals for the setting up of a Council of Education on the lines recommended by the Commission on Vocational Education, Mr. E. KISSANE, Parliamentary Secretary, said the motion had enshrined in it new principles of governmental procedure. There was an attempt to take from the Government the responsibility that belonged to it and to vest that responsibility in a committee of the Dail.

General MULCAHY said that, looking back over the record of this debate, it struck him that there was never such a shocking travesty carried on in any Parliament as that carried on by the Taoiseach, the Minister and the Parliamentary Secretary. The Taoiseach said it was not only a vote of censure on the Government, but was more or less upsetting the whole order of Parliamentary procedure in a democratic country.

The Minister and Taoiseach had behaved disgracefully in a matter that was of such very serious importance.

On a division the motion was defeated by 51 votes to 46.

P.O.W. CAMPS

Churchill Says Nothing Will Be Withheld

MR. CHURCHILL replying in the House of Commons yesterday to Mr. Lipson (Ind.), who asked whether the photographs of Buchenwald camp would be published said: "Nothing the House wishes to see will be withheld from it on account of its revolting aspects.

"As far as the Report is concerned, we have had most trusted members of both Houses and their Report will be laid before the House at the earliest moment.

"I have only read a portion of it myself. It seems to be of a most painful character and deeply interesting."

To Mr. Granville (Ind.), who asked whether other members of the House would be given the opportunity to see conditions, if not in the concentration camps, on the western front, Mr. Churchill replied: "I am quite sure General Eisenhower would meet any wishes we expressed in reason in this matter but I am shy of asking too much, though I am quite certain if the House really wishes this, and I ask for it, the request would be granted."

New Development In Labour Split

The Irish Trade Union Congress will carry on, despite the fact that a number of unions with headquarters in Eire have formed themselves into a National Trade Union Congress.

Our Labour Correspondent was informed last night that the National Executive of the Irish Trade Union Congress will meet to-day to discuss the new development. Mr. Gilbert Lynch, of the Amalgamated Transport and General Workers' Union, who was one of the delegates who attended the recent World Trade Union Congress in London, probably will preside.

Steps, it is stated, will be taken to fill the vacancies on the National Executive brought about by the formation of the new group, and to make arrangements for the holding of a conference of delegates from all the unions affiliated to the Irish T.U.C.

Free Press Essential

Referring to war-time controls, Lord Rosebery, in his presidential address to the Liberal National Conference in London yesterday, said:—

"A very great number can be taken off almost at once. Let me instance just one—the control of the Press.

"Freedom of the Press is vital to Britain, and control was only placed on it for security and military reasons at the outbreak of hostilities.

"It is the greatest safeguard for peace that we can have, and if there had been an absolutely free Press in Europe for the last dozen years things might have been very different."

More Money For Department of Education

THE MINISTER FOR EDUCATION, Mr. T. Derrig, moving the estimate of £5,651,262 (an increase of £218,311) for his department in the Dail yesterday, stated that in the office of the Minister the increase was £22,540, of which £18,000 was on account of the cost of living bonus.

They also had to fill vacancies on the staff, he said, and take in new officers to deal with extra work caused by the decision to pay teachers' salaries fortnightly instead of monthly.

The Primary Education Department would cost £4,156,733, or £93,694 more than last year. At present £320,600 was paid yearly in emergency bonus, which must be increased by £28,600 on account of the extra shilling per week.

On the Secondary Education Vote, Mr. DERRIG said that the increase would be £35,460. The sum required for technical instruction was £414,725—an increase of £51,728. The sum of £67,055 which was being sought for science and art was £12,229 higher than in 1944-45. A grant in aid of £2,000 would be given in respect of the survey of Irish historical records in foreign collections and a similar sum would be given as a grant in aid for the provision of a library of suitable educational films for the National Film Institute. £1,000 would be given to Irish colleges for classes for persons other than teachers. There was an increase of £320 in the provision for the National Gallery, and the £20,390 for the Dublin Institute for Advanced Studies showed an increase of £3,100.

"For the past ten years or so," said Mr. DERRIG, "the attendance at Irish colleges had been decreasing, partly because increasing numbers of young teachers qualify for the Teastas Dha Theangach at their final examination in training, and travel and rationing difficulties also affected the attendance." The Departmental Committee set up to inquire into the further revival of Irish among the general public and to assist teachers to obtain greater efficiency in the teaching through the medium of Irish, had decided that courses would be more attractive in the 1945-46 year. Among the suggestions of the committee was that, instead of formal instruction in the Irish language, the Irish colleges would give general refresher courses for teachers, and persons other than teachers would be given suitable courses.

Progress was reported, and the House adjourned until 10.30 a.m. to-day.

"Battles of Pockets" In Progress

[Reuter and A.P.]

MR. STIMSON, U.S. Secretary of War, said yesterday: "The battles of the pockets in Germany are now getting under way.

"There is no doubt that there is heavy and, perhaps, prolonged fighting yet to be done in sections of the Reich."

There were three main areas, he said, where this resistance was likely to be found—"the Berlin corridor, the North Sea coast, including Bremen and Hamburg, with Denmark behind them, and the South German area, including Munich and the redoubt."

"Other German pockets," he added, "include 75,000 to 90,000 troops in West Holland, 100,000 in various French ports and the Channel Islands, 30,000 in Crete and other Ægean islands, and 150,000 in Norway."

Reuter's special correspondent with the U.S. 3rd Army states:—

Advancing down the valley between the Danube and the Czechoslovak border, General Patton's tank spearheads last night were eight miles from the junction of the borders of Austria, Germany and Czechoslovakia. Opposition seems to have melted. Further west the three Danube bridgeheads east and west of Regensburg are building up against small arms and bazooka fire alone.

Other troops, supported by dive-bombers, fought their way into the city of Ingolstadt, and reached the Danube 42 miles north of Munich. The light opposition at the Danube crossing was surprising, for it was expected that the Germans would do everything to prevent the breaching of the "redoubt" perimeter.

An A.P. report said later that the Germans were massing troops and machines in the vicinity of Passau to save that gateway to the "redoubt."

The U.S. 3rd and 7th Armies now control 180 miles of the Danube east of Sigmaringen, with crossings at several points. Unconfirmed reports said that the Americans had entered Augsburg and Regensburg.

French tank forces last night crossed the old Rhine bridge into Constance, the German lakeside town on the eastern Swiss frontier. The town was undefended, and hundreds of people who fled to the border were held in check by Swiss troops.

V-Bombs Killed 2,754 People

The total number of V-2 bombs which fell on Southern England between September 8th, 1944, and March 27th was 1,050, according to the P.A. They killed 2,754 people and seriously injured 6,523. The attacks were most frequent last February, when 71 rockets fell in the southern counties in one week.

There were hundreds of "incidents," the worst of which were at New Cross in November, when 160 died during the lunch-hour rush, and at Stepney in March, when a rocket reduced a block of flats to rubble, killing 134 people.

The first rockets used by the Germans were radio-controlled until they started falling towards Southern England. The latest type had an automatic device to cut off the fuel supply at a determined height.

A new type of flying bomb was believed to have been launched against Southern England early in March. Its speed was estimated by airmen at nearly 800 miles an hour.

Colchester heard Britain's last alert.

Asked yesterday in the House of Commons whether he was now able to make any statement with regard to the rocket attacks, Mr. Churchill replied: "Yes, sir; they have ceased," and then sat down.

Asked if he would give an assurance that there was no prospect that they were likely to be resumed, Mr. Churchill said that it was his duty to record facts rather than indulge in prophecy, but he had recorded certain facts with a very considerable air of optimism, which he trusted would not be brought into mockery by events.

Rabbit and Hare Prices Increased

The Minister of Food has made an Order permitting an increase of twopence per lb. in the maximum prices of rabbits sold in Belfast, and a penny per lb. in Derry, or at first-hand in any area not specified in the principal Order, and delivered by the seller at the buyers premises in Belfast or Derry for re-sale.

Increases are also allowed on hares—in Belfast sixpence each, and in Derry threepence each.

Dail Scene

THIRTEEN PERSONS EJECTED

FOR the final forty-five minutes of last night's Dail sitting, Civic Guards on duty in the public gallery were kept busy ejecting men, who rose to protest against the "miserable salaries" being paid to Dublin school teachers.

Apparently an organised protest was made as Mr. T. Derrig, Minister for Education, speaking in Irish, introduced the annual estimate for his department.

Between 8.15 p.m. and the adjournment of the House thirteen men had been ejected from the gallery and escorted outside the Kildare street main gate. Seated at different points in the gallery, they had timed their protests so that while the Guards were engaged in hustling one man from his seat another would stand up at another point to speak.

"IN DEBT"

The first interrupter—a young man—took the Guards completely by surprise, and thereby succeeded in making the longest speech. He had only time to say: "Ceann Comhairle, on behalf of the Dublin teachers, I wish to protest against the miserable salaries that are being paid to us. You are demoralising us, but we won't allow you to demoralise us."

At a signal from the Ceann Comhairle, two policemen crossed the gallery, and began to drag him towards the exit. As he was being removed, he shouted: "We are in debt, and we can't wait either."

A man, aged about sixty, rose in the gallery and began speaking in Irish. He had only said "An bfuil sibh dariribh?" ("Are you in earnest?") when the Guards, now re-inforced, caught hold of him and as he was being removed he continued to speak in a loud voice, but his words were muffled by a Guard, who placed a hand over his mouth.

Meantime the Minister had begun his speech in Irish, but he had only said a few words when a third man shouted: "We demand that justice be given to the teachers." He also was removed, as was a fourth man who attempted to speak after him.

Tea Ration Reduced

THE tea ration will be reduced to half an ounce for every person from to-morrow. Institutions and catering establishments will receive two-thirds of their April ration during May.

Stettinius Calls For Suppression Of Aggression

THE World Security Conference yesterday moved swiftly and hopefully into the vital organisational stage, with the next few hours expected to determine whether the "Big Four" will continue to lead the way as a cohesive team, John Chester, A.P. special correspondent, cabled last night from San Francisco.

A significant development was that the "Big Four" have chosen Belgium, Brazil, Canada, Iran, Mexico and Yugo-Slavia to sit with them, together with the fifth permanent member (France) on the Eleven-Nation Executive Committee. Such membership, it is generally felt, could well be the forerunner to inclusion in a similar alignment on the proposed Security Council—

A Council which would wield more world power than any group of nations in history.

Mr. Stettinius, U.S. Secretary of State, said that the preparation of the charter of a world organisation "should not be entangled with the many complex political and economic issues involved in the defeat of Germany and Japan. The imminent collapse of organised German resistance made it all the more important that a world organisation should be established at the earliest possible moment.

"The peace-loving nations, which have the military and industrial strength required to prevent or suppress aggression, must agree and act together against aggression. If they do not agree and act together, aggression cannot be prevented or suppressed without a major war.

"We propose that, after it is established, the organisation shall be open to the membership of all other nations which have demonstrated their willingness and ability to fulfil their obligations under the Charter."

Mr. Eden said that this time mankind must succeed in creating international machinery to solve disputes. "The work on which we are making a start here may be the world's last chance."

"We shall have taken the indispensable first step if we can now draw up a charter within the framework of our principles. Details can be filled in in the light of experience. If we work to the utmost of our strength, it should be possible for us to agree on a charter within four weeks."

Mr. Molotov sent out, in advance, a notice that he would seek general approval of the proposal to give Russia three votes in the National Assembly, and said at a Press conference, "We shall do all in our power to solve the Polish question without delay."

Pétain Arrested

A group of officers was sent from Paris yesterday to arrest Marshal Pétain at the Swiss border.

The Marshal, says an A.P. cable, was the object of a spontaneous, if small, demonstration at Waedenswyl, where women and children presented flowers and chocolates to Madame Pétain. Deeply moved, the Marshal insisted on thanking the donors personally.

M. André Mornet, Procureur-General of the High Court, which will try Pétain, said yesterday that Pétain deserves death for his politics. He added that he will ask for clemency for the aged Marshal.

National Health Insurance Society

An Order made by the Government provides that no members of the Insured Persons (Local Authorities Nominees) Members Electorate of the National Health Insurance Society are to be nominated by local authorities in 1945; that the present members are to remain in office till April 30th, 1946; and that the present members of the Committee of Management of the National Health Insurance Society shall continue to hold office until July 31st, 1946.

BRITISH TAX SYSTEM TO BE REVIEWED

SIR JOHN ANDERSON, Chancellor of the Exchequer, replying yesterday, in the British Commons, to the debate on the Budget, said he thought there should be, as soon as possible, a comprehensive review of taxation, and that, in any such review, the system of tax allowances and abatements would have to be included.

The Chancellor said he doubted whether it would be possible in the future, under P.A.Y.E. ("Pay-as-you-earn" tax), to introduce changes in the rates of the structure of income tax to come into effect immediately, and added that the most difficult period would be shortly after the end of hostilities, when there might be a kind of false boom.

"If we do not profit by our experiences after the last war, a tremendous inflation may be followed very soon by a disastrous slump," he said.

Sir John also informed the House that the current cost of food subsidies was £225,000,000.

GENERAL MacEOIN WILL STAND FOR PRESIDENCY

THE Fine Gael party last night decided to nominate General Sean MacEoin as a candidate for the Presidency, in opposition to Mr. Sean T. O'Kelly, Minister for Finance.

The Fine Gael party, it is stated, is taking this step because an effort to get the other parties to join with them in selecting a non-party candidate failed.

This means that there will be at least three candidates for the office, Dr. McCartan, the non-party nominee, being the third.

General Mulcahy, in a statement to the Press last night, said it was clear that in February last the Government intended to put forward a member of their own party for the Presidency. The National Executive of Fine Gael considered that, in view of the dictatorial spirit in which Government policy was being pursued, a purely party candidate for the Presidency should be opposed by a non-party candidate. They felt that they would not be shouldering their public responsibilities if they did not make an effort to secure this. The Executive, therefore, decided that the other opposition parties should be approached with a view to seeing whether, in the circumstances, a joint opposition candidate, who would be above party could be chosen, thus giving the electorate a fair and reasonable chance of electing a suitable person who might be relied on to safeguard the popular rights.

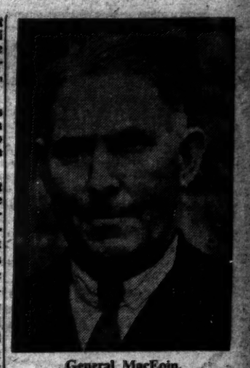
MAN OF THE PEOPLE

The other parties, General Mulcahy stated, were unable to agree to take part in such selection, but the Fine Gael Party had decided that day to support the candidature of General Sean MacEoin, who had been pre-eminently a man of the people throughout his whole career.

In reply to questions, General Mulcahy said that they expected that General MacEoin would get widespread support from outside the party with which he had been associated.

"We are taking the initiative," he said, "in seeing that the people will get a candidate who, if elected, will perform his duties in an absolutely non-party spirit. We expect to get nominators outside the Fine Gael Party."

It is expected that the Order for the election will be promulgated to-day, when the dates for nomination and withdrawal will be fixed. As there will now be a contest the elections for the local boards will take place on the same day as the Presidential election.



General MacEoin.

"Best Elements Must Combine"

SPEAKING at a meeting of the North Dublin Executive of Fine Gael in Dublin last night, Dr. T. F. O'Higgins, T.D., said that he had sufficient confidence in the Irish people and in Irish public men to believe that a candidate for the Presidency would be put forward nominated by other than narrow party interests and giving broader representation to all elements of the nation than would be given by the Fianna Fail Party candidate.

Fianna Fail, through its Ministers, had unbiushingly expressed their determination to grab and control the local councils through their puppets. "Only last May," said Dr. O'Higgins, "we had an irresponsible decision to have a rushed election to secure complete control of the Dail. One Senate was destroyed and replaced by another Senate, where the leader of Fianna Fail had the right to appoint one quarter of its members, so that Fianna Fail would control that body. Transport has been openly taken over by the political bosses through their political majority, and now we have the Nazi tentacles reaching out to grab the Presidential office and to head off the totalitarian system by appointing a political Gauleiter as President of Ireland."

The various elements in the State could not gather around any Fianna Fail Gauleiter. The office would be brought to discredit and disrepute by its creator. Others must seriously consider whether it was not in the best interests of the State and its institutions completely to boycott such an office as long as it was debased and degraded by being filled by a party agent.

It was not yet too late for public opinion to demand that the office should not be filled in such a manner by a Fianna Fail agent.

Watches Case Ends

The Special Criminal Court in Dublin yesterday, after a trial lasting 22 days, convicted Joseph Shribman, Ailesbury drive, Dublin; and William Samuels, Silverdale, Palmerston Park, Dublin, of conspiracy to export watches otherwise than in accordance with a licence. Sentence will be pronounced to-day. Report in page 2.

About 500 workers employed at the Castlecomer Collieries have been on strike since Monday. It is stated that the strike was called because some of the men are non-union members and some are in areas with their union subscriptions. Up to last night there was no sign of the strike ending.

Thirteen Teachers

Thirteen school teachers in the Dail last night may have contrived to awaken the public to the profession's resolve to enforce an increase in the salary scale. It is not very seemly, perhaps, that the proceedings of the national Parliament should be interrupted by demonstrators who have to be ejected by the Guards; but it is far more unseemly that the teachers should be forced to take such steps in an attempt to secure their rights. We have touched before on the miserable inadequacy of the scales at present in force, under which a young teacher, having completed many years of study for his profession, is eligible for remuneration at the rate of about £140 a year—or, as a writer pointed out recently, exactly £1 4s. 0d. a week less than the Corporation street sweeper. This, indeed, is no very high target for a young man's ambition; and his enthusiasm for the teacher's life may be quenched entirely when he realises that twenty years' service will entitle him to the final princely reward of £350 a year. The Minister for Education has been approached many times with the urgent demand that steps should be taken to raise salaries at once. Young teachers, pressed by the rising cost of living and the necessity to "keep up appearances" which their position entails, have begun to feel the pinch more and more. "We are in debt"—cried one of the demonstrators last night; and his plea, cut short as it was, sums up the plight of very many of the profession. We are inclined to wonder that the children of to-day take so kindly to the robbery of gas-meters as a means of making pocket-money, and we wonder at the increase of juvenile delinquency; yet if we offer them a down-at-heel teacher as an example of the rewards of virtue and hard work, what can we expect? A shilling a week, the increase granted last year, is a mere insult. May we urge the Minister, before he allows the standard of the profession to disintegrate completely, to consider the demands of the teachers as a serious matter, and not as a mere effort to annoy him and distract the Dail?

CAUSE OF UNEVENNESS IN MILK SUPPLIES

THE fixing of milk prices was an extraordinarily difficult thing, said Mr. J. H. Breen, Department of Agriculture, at yesterday's sitting of the Tribunal inquiring into means to improve the city's milk supplies. The Department of Supplies wanted to have a safe margin of supply, to keep the price of milk in a marketable unit, and to spread that over the whole year was by no means easy.

The Department of Agriculture accepted in the main, he said, the interim report of the Committee of Inquiry on post-emergency agricultural policy. The unevenness in milk production commented on in the report was due to the fact that they were producing butter from summer milk.

Mr. Justice Maguire—In 1911 and 1926 there were two important investigations, which extended to the whole country. They recommended, among other things, the extension of winter dairying, and indicated measures to safeguard the purity of supply. I take it this was quietly forgotten and shelved. It is a bit hard that we should be asked to do the same work and have it put quietly by. Who is responsible for this shelving?

Mr. Breen—I cannot quite understand. We have winter dairying and if we had not there would be no milk in Dublin during the year.

Mr. Justice Maguire—When a commission reports to the Department of Agriculture, I want to know what is done about it?

Mr. Breen said he was not in a position to say.

Dr. J. A. Deeney, chief medical adviser to the Department of Local Government and Public Health, said that although since the war there had been an increase in tubercular meningitis, research in Wales had shown that this rise was not due to bovine tuberculosis. One of the difficulties in evacuating children to the country was that there was not enough milk for them down the country.

Dr. Deeney added that the Department of Local Government and Public Health would recommend an extension of the Free Milk Scheme to all children under five years of age whose parents' income was below a certain level, and milk at reduced rates to parents who did not qualify for free supplies, but found it difficult to get sufficient milk for their children.

The further hearing was adjourned until to-day.

IMPROVED PUBLIC LIGHTING SOON

QUESTIONS were asked in the Dail yesterday by a number of deputies concerning cowls on public lights, air raid shelters, road blocks and barricades.

Replying to Mr. M. E. Dockrell, Mr. F. AIKEN said that cowls had been removed from a large number of lamps in the city of Dublin. He said the City Manager would be authorised to remove the remainder shortly. The removal of the cowls would also be general throughout the country shortly.

Surface air raid shelters, the Minister told Mr. Dockrell and Mr. M. Donnellan, would be removed in cities and towns the moment the Government was satisfied that conditions warranted.

In regard to road blocks and barricades, Mr. TRAYNOR told Mr. Donnellan that a limited number of military engineers had been engaged for the past couple of months in removing these obstructions and it was hoped that the work would have been completed by the end of May. The road block at Chapelizod Village would be removed before the end of this week.

Kinsealy Schools.—Mr. T. DERRIG told Mr. P. J. Fogarty that the Kinsealy, Co. Dublin, National Schools buildings were unsuitable and overcrowded and his Department was in correspondence with the manager with regard to the provision of a site for the erection of new schools.

LABOUR PREPARES FOR LOCAL ELECTIONS

A joint meeting of the Dublin Constituency Councils of the Labour Party was held in the Irish Women Workers' Hall to consider the re-adjustment of existing election machinery to meet the new situation created by the changing of the electoral areas. It was decided to elect a Central Election Committee to direct and co-ordinate the work of the Area Committees in the local elections and to arrange for the uniform working of the selection campaign. Twenty-five candidates were provisionally ratified and arrangements made for the selection of further candidates.

I.A.O.S. TRADING RETURNS

A business movement, which started from zero and which is now responsible for 363 societies, whose aggregate trade totals £15,647,597, is how the Irish Agricultural Organisation Society, Ltd., is described in the society's report for 1944.

The report states that the results "are the more striking when it is borne in mind that the I.A.O.S. was incorporated to foster agricultural co-operation throughout the whole of Ireland, and that as, unfortunately, it now functions in 26 counties only, the business conducted by the societies affiliated to the sister organisation society in Northern Ireland should also be accredited to the great work done by the founders of the movement."

Proposing the toast, "Ireland," Mr. Martin asked what would be the position to-day, in relation to a world gone mad in war, had there been no rising in 1916. "Can anyone doubt," he said, "that long since our cities and towns would have been shattered to ruins,
